It is great to see young people engaging with filmmaking in this way and United Cinemas are proud to support their success. Their teacher, Adrian Tyson, brings his world class Cannes Film Festival level filmmaking experience and teaching knowledge together to create this fantastic program. One day our cinemas will surely feature some of these students in the blockbusters we screen every day."

Saad Soubra

"Future Film Stars' Cannes program presented the students with a structured, yet creative story telling opportunity that really challenged their thinking. They were able to carry these skills forward, integrating them into further writing and presentation activities. The students also developed an appreciation for the craft of movie making, as well as being able to refine and apply drama skills for an authentic purpose. Seeing their finished product on the big screen was an absolute highlight of their year!"
